

March 13 – March 19, 2017 Alert on Immigration

What's Happening?

Now, Trump has issued a replacement executive order, one that his lawyers evidently felt would be easier to defend. The original order barred all immigration for ninety days from seven predominantly Muslim countries, the new one bars immigration from six of the original seven. Iraq was removed from the list, apparently after substantial behind-the-scenes pressure from government officials who were worried that we had jeopardized our relationship with Iraq, an important US ally. The new order does not bar lawful permanent residents and others from those six countries who have already been granted visas. It applies only to those seeking new visas. And where the initial order suspended refugee admissions from Syria indefinitely, and from all other countries for one hundred twenty days, the new order subjects Syrian refugees to the same suspension as everyone else.

Some of the commentary about the new order has suggested that these marginal changes have made it less vulnerable to legal challenge. It will certainly be less disruptive; because the order exempts current visa-holders and does not go into effect until March 16, it shouldn't cause the same chaos we saw at airports the weekend that the first order was signed. The decision to exempt current visa-holders also means that the order does not strip individuals in the US of rights previously granted to them, as the first order did. From: beltran@riseup.net

Action One: Prayer

O God, Creator of the heavens and of earth, helps us to see one another through eyes enlightened by understanding and compassion.

Help us to listen to the voices of all of our sisters through the world with respect and attention.

Open our ears to the cries of women who have been denied their rights and their dignity.

Empower us to the instruments of justice for all, for in the wholeness of Christ, all mothers are our own mothers, and we are one. Amen. From Interfaith Worker Justice – Women's Month
